

City of Miami Gardens
Americans with Disabilities Act

Self-Evaluation Status
December 2007

The City of Miami Gardens is presently conducting an Americans with Disabilities Act Self-Evaluation study of its buildings, programs and services.

To make the findings of this study meaningful and pertinent as possible, the City requests the participation of anyone who would wish to contribute to the study in any way. Participation may take the form of completing the City's ADA Questionnaire (available on this website), advice, suggestions, questions or an interest in participating in meetings. Participation would be most relevant if contributed by persons with disabilities. The City will be holding input meetings on this study at a later date.

If you would like to participate, please give us your name and address and we will notify you in advance of such meetings. Individuals who need auxiliary aids for effective communication are invited to make their needs and preferences known by writing or calling the person listed below, or by emailing ADA@miamigardens-fl.gov.

Disability is defined as any physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities, i.e. seeing, walking, speaking, hearing, breathing, self care, learning and performing manual tasks. The term also includes people who have a past record of impairments, such as persons who have experienced heart attacks, persons recovering from cancer, or former patients of mental hospitals, etc.
